Dogs Lose Winnie Ruth's Trail in Old Graveyard; Killer Flees Second Time

PHOENIX, Ariz., Dec. 4—While authorities scoured the Phoenix area in their search for her, Winnie Ruth Judd, "blonde tigress" slayer of her two closest women friends, today broke into the home of an old family friend, took time to write two notes, steal some food and two coats, and then disappeared again.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Dec. 4—Having escaped for the second time in six weeks from the Arizona state insane asylum, Winnie Ruth Judd, "blonde tigress" slayer of two close women friends, today was sought by a posse with bloodhounds on the desert brushlands near Phoenix.

Fear was believed to have driven Mrs. Judd to again flee from the institution. It was learned that when visited by her 70-year-old mother, Mrs. H. J. McKinnell, yesterday, the insane murderess expressed fear that hospital authorities would lock her in a small cell to preclude the chance of another escape.

Both parents of the missing woman were afraid she might commit suicide rather than to submit to capture a second time.

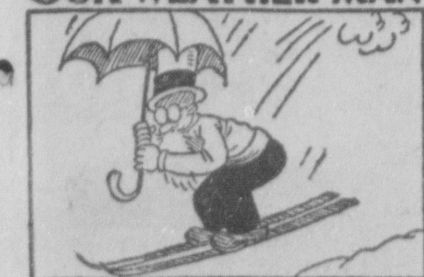

STEBENVILLE'S NOV. 7 ELECTION BRINGS INQUIRY

COLUMBUS, Dec. 4—Secretary of State Earl Griffith today sent Leonard J. Stern and James Welker to Steubenville to investigate charges of vote fraud at the November 7 municipal election.

Griffith said an affidavit, charging that persons voted under fictitious names, that there was "high pressuring" at the polls, that 20 persons were registered from one "four-room shack" and that persons were imported from Cleveland and Pittsburgh to vote, had been filed with him. He said his investigators would require at least a week to probe the charges.

The hounds quickly led the party of searchers to an old graveyard half a mile from the asylum. There, amid the tombstones of Arizona pioneers, the trail became confused and the (Continued on Page Two)

Passengers From Countries Not At War Warned To Evade Allied Lines

Admiralty Coins Phrase To Use in Unrelenting War On High Seas

BERLIN, Dec. 4—A three-fold naval campaign designed to throttle British trade was announced by the German high command in reprisal for British seizure of German exports.

"Every ship to England will be on its death-ride" was the slogan coined by the admiralty as all branches of German officialdom united in denying claims from London that British planes had scored a victory in a raid on Helgoland yesterday.

Coincident with this statement, the official German news agency DNB once again warned of the danger of traveling aboard British and French ships listed by the Germans as "armed merchantmen" and therefore liable to sinking.

"There are indications," DNB said, "that passengers from neutral countries are disregarding the lists of armed merchant vessels made public by the German government."

"Travelers would do well to study these lists attentively."

ANTI-MONOPOLY BOARD TO STUDY PROFITS IN WAR

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—Carrying out President Roosevelt's request to be on the lookout for war profiteering, the Federal Monopoly Committee today started an investigation of the commodity price situation, based principally on the period following the start of the European war.

The war-profits hearings, expected to last four days, will be divided between the testimony of members of the committee and leading industrialists and economists.

The committee's inquiry into investment banking will begin Dec. 12 under the direction of the Securities and Exchange Commission. A subcommittee will continue investigation of practices in the life insurance business, beginning Dec. 7, also under the direction of the SEC.

The price hearing was based on information obtained by various government departments following the President's request to the committee to keep a "constant eye" on war profits Sept. 29.

On his day off Sunday he allegedly tried to save a nickel by using a slug in an elevated turnstile. A guard hauled him off to the station. There they searched him and found $691 in cash and eight bank books showing deposits of $47,830. He was being held today for further investigation.

JENKINS' LEAVE ENDS; SHERWOOD PLANS REMOVAL

COLUMBUS, Dec. 4—Thomas C. Jenkins, whose 90-day leave of absence from the superintendency of the London Prison Farm expires tomorrow, was to confer with State Welfare Director Sherwood today.

"I will ask for his resignation," Sherwood said. "If he doesn't resign, I will suspend him for 30 days during which time removal charges will be filed with the state civil service commission."

W. F. Amrine was named acting superintendent of the prison farm when Jenkins, who has been in ill health, was granted the 90-day leave with pay Sept. 5.

If Jenkins resigns, Sherwood said, he will be eligible for a pension of approximately $90 a month. Jenkins has been at the London institution since 1935. Prejudice, he was head of the Mansfield reformatory.

Jenkins was understood to have been under fire when granted the leave because of a series of escapes from the farm.

His Mother's Teacher

WHEN Mrs. Rosario Clemenza, who left Italy 20 years ago, attempted to take out final citizenship papers in New York City, judge said she would have to learn more English and appointed her son, Anthony, 11, her teacher. Part of the daily lesson is the reading of newspapers, at which task mother is being coached by son. He gives her plenty of homework, too.

PRESIDENT'S SON ROYAL NAVY HITS AND WIFE HURT GERMAN CLAIMS IN AUTO CRASH OF RULE AT SEA

FORT WORTH, Tex., Dec. 4—Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt were recovering at their Benbrook ranch today from slight injuries suffered in a collision between their automobile and another at a Fort Worth street intersection.

They were taken in an ambulance to a city hospital, where Mrs. Roosevelt was treated for a bruised ankle and facial cuts. The President's son was cut on the face and right leg and parts of two teeth were broken.

Three persons in the other car were injured, one of them seriously.

STATE ALLOWED TO TAX ESTATE BY HIGH COURT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—The Supreme Court today ruled that the state of Oregon has the right to levy an inheritance tax against a $450,000 trust left by Dr. Edward T. Hayes, who died in Portland, Ore., Feb. 11, 1936 at the age of 79 years.

The trust at issue, executed on August 17, 1935, was for Hayes' children and other beneficiaries.

The state claimed right to tax the trust on the ground that it can tax all property of its citizens, wherever found, while the Oregon supreme court held that it could not levy the tax because the trust was executed in Chicago and the property was located there.

Justice Douglas delivered the court's opinion. Justice Stone, in a separate opinion supported by Justice Frankfurter, announced that he believes that states have the power to tax gifts by a citizen of federal reserve notes, Justice McReynolds dissented.

Today's decision, upholding the conviction of the resigned senior judge of the U. S. circuit court here, was written by George Sutherland, retired U. S. supreme court justice. The other two members of the special court were Justice Harlan Stone of the U. S. supreme court and Justice Charles Clark of the federal circuit court in New York.

GEORGIA TECH-MISSOURI, TULANE-TEXAS A. M. MEET?

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 4—Georgia Tech vs. Missouri in Miami's Orange Bowl and Tulane vs. Texas A. and M. in the New Orleans Sugar Bowl.

That's the way Dame Rumor had two of the southland's New Year's day "bowl" football games lined up today, but it was strictly unofficial.

Only one of the four teams has been officially named. Georgia Tech was issued and quickly accepted an invitation to play in the Orange Bowl after the Yellow Jackets defeated Georgia Saturday, 13 to 0, to clinch at least a share of the Southeastern conference title.

Stricken Cities Must Work With Counties To Stop Suffering, He Says

COLUMBUS, Dec. 4—Defending his position in refusing to call a special session of the legislature to appropriate more money for poor relief, Gov. John W. Bricker today asserted that the relief problem could be solved in municipalities through cooperation of city and county officials.

In a statement, the governor contended that the critical relief situation in Toledo and Cleveland could be remedied through "honest and sincere cooperation" by the officials of those cities and the counties in which they are situated.

"It would do no good to call the legislature," he said, "unless its members, who represent the entire state and not just the cities with pressing relief problems, can be convinced that the cities are (Continued on Page Two)

ATTENDANCE AT LIVESTOCK SHOW SETS NEW MARK

CHICAGO, Dec. 4—Attendance records were being rung up today as the 40th International Livestock Exposition embarked on a week of heavy activity in connection with the judging of prize farm animals and farm products. It was estimated that 104,000 persons crowded into the international amphitheater over the week end for the first two days of the eight-day exposition.

A lull in livestock judging ended today when Jorge Gordon Davis, Argentine cattle expert from Buenos Aires, began assembling hundreds of candidates for the grand championship steer award, and other experts rounded up contenders for swine, sheep and draft horse titles.

Today also marked the influx of some 1,400 picked members of the National 4-H Club. A full week of activity for the youngsters will be highlighted tonight with a parade in the amphitheater.

A Canadian exhibitor won the dominion's fourth grain championship and the fifth of the show when Bill Skladan of Andrew, Alberta, was crowned 1939 "oats king" on his sample of "victory" oats weighing 49 pounds to the bushel.

Today also marked the influx of some 1,400 picked members of the National 4-H Club. A full week of activity for the youngsters will be highlighted tonight with a parade in the amphitheater.

FINNISH IN VICTORIES?

Many Invaders Drown When Ice Breaks, Helsingfors Authorities Report

HELSINGFORS, Dec. 4—Backed by heavy concentrations of Soviet warships and submarines in Finland's Arctic harbors, Russian troops landed at Linahamari in the Far North today and launched a new offensive at various points near the Norwegian frontier.

While snowstorms and low visibility restricted military activities on the Carelian Isthmus and elsewhere in the South, bitter new fighting was reported in the Petsamo district after the Russians took Linahamari with landing parties sent by sea from Soviet seaports in the Arctic.

Russian aviation also was active in the North, with two raids being carried out at points near the Norwegian frontier at the very moment the Finnish government of Premier Risto Ryti was making new peace overtures to Moscow.

The so-called "nickel city" of Salmijervi near Petsamo is ablaze as the result of a Russian onslaught, it was reported. Heavy clouds of smoke billowed across the frontier into Norway.

Many Landed By Boat
It was estimated that the Russians had landed 3,000 men at Linahamari, most of them by boat although some were brought into Finnish territory by air.

Finnish troops in the North are determined to resist the invaders to the utmost, an announcement said.

Reports received in Helsingfors via Kirkenes, Norway, told of Soviet troop and naval concentrations in the northern areas.

These same reports revealed that a famous old Russian monastery and church at Petschenga, some 50 miles from Petsamo, had been set afire and destroyed by the Soviet invaders.

Refugees continue to pour by the hundreds into Kirkenes after encountering untold hardships in their flight over the frozen tundra to safety in Norway.

News of fresh outbreaks of fighting in the North followed Finnish claims of sweeping successes over the Russians to the South.

Large numbers of Russian soldiers were killed, it was asserted, when Finnish land mines exploded (Continued on Page Two)

BRITAIN'S KING VISITS EMPIRE'S MEN IN FRANCE

LONDON, Dec. 4—King George VI has arrived in France on his first visit to the British Expeditionary Force, it was officially announced today.

The king journeyed across the channel aboard a British destroyer, landing at a French port during the afternoon.

He was accompanied by the Duke of Gloucester, liaison officer between the British and French armies.

near Terijoki at the Carellan battle front. Some reports placed the number of Russian mine victims at 1,000.

Authorities also claimed that twelve Soviet raiding planes were "annihilated" and that a whole company of Russian parachute troops was captured when they landed behind the Finnish defense lines.

Still other reports said that several hundred Russian soldiers were drowned when ice broke under them as Soviet shock troops and artillery units advanced over frozen marshes north of Lake Ladoga.

Owing to a heavy snowstorm, there were no Russian air attacks on Helsinki or other sections of southern Finland up until noon, Helsinki time.

Most residents of the city had been evacuated, but fears were expressed that many of the refugees might freeze to death on the icy roads leading from the city.

Ski Troops Used

(A Reuter dispatch from Amsterdam said it was reported that picked companies of Finnish ski troops were attacking Russians along the Carellan and eastern borders, but that the heavy snow prevented any large-scale action.

(According to the London Daily Telegraph, Russian aircraft dropped leaflets on Helsinki warning that 500 Soviet bombers would attack the city today. A Stockholm report said fears were expressed that gas bombs might be used in the next raid on the capital.

(This fear was said to have resulted from Moscow charges that Finnish troops had fought the Russians with poison gas. These charges were denied.)

Eighteen more Soviet tanks were destroyed and Finland's defenders, while retreating from some positions, threw back repeated Russian attacks against their eastern lines reaching from the Arctic to the Carellan isthmus.

It was announced that the Rytty government sent to Moscow, through the Swedish minister, an offer to negotiate a settlement which would respect Finland's sovereign interests.

A communique said Moscow was approached "with an inquiry as to whether the Soviet government was prepared to open negotiations for a peaceful settlement."

"No reply so far has been received," the statement added.

Sympathy Cited

In addition, Foreign Minister V. A. Tanner asserted that Finland would never give way to "Russian terror" and added that Finland would have "effective help" as well as sympathy of the rest of the world.

Decision to seek a settlement with Moscow coincided with a Finnish appeal to the League of Nations for action to halt the Red invasion. This did not mean surrender by Finland, an announcement stated, but merely demonstrated Finnish willingness to enter negotiations.

Finnish combat planes and anti-aircraft guns accounted for the Russian squadron of 12 planes when the latter attempted to bomb a power station at Imatra, north-west of the Carellan isthmus. Eleven were shot down in flames and the twelfth was forced to land and its crew captured.

The company of Russian parachute troops was disarmed and taken prisoner after alighting at Villmannstrand, 42 miles northwest of the southeastern port of Viborg.

Finnish advances also said four Soviet infantry companies were "destroyed" near Metsapirtti north of Lake Ladoga, with 300 Red army men killed and 700 captured.

An official communique said 44 Soviet tanks were known to have been destroyed and 24 Soviet planes shot down since beginning of the war, while only two Finnish planes were lost. At least 82 civilians were killed and 182 wounded in Russian air raids, most of them in Helsinki, according to official figures.

KERENSKY SAYS PEOPLE UNAWARE OF FINN WAR

NEW YORK, Dec. 4—Russia's invasion of Finland is being carried on without either the consent or knowledge of the Russian people, it was charged today by Alexander Kerensky, former Russian premier and leader of the 1917 revolution which overthrew the czar.

A truly democratic government in Russia, Kerensky said, would have peacefully accomplished any revision of Finland's frontiers necessary for Russia's security.

paign against England is expected to take these forms:

1—A ring of mines all around the British Isles.

2—Creation of a circle of "forbidden zones" in which unrestricted submarine warfare will be carried out.

3—Increased U-boat activities throughout British waters.

Germany intensified its efforts to dissuade neutral nations from sending ships to England by emphasizing the risks involved. Sea-planes can easily strew mines in the shipping lanes, spokesmen declared, while the so-called "magnetic mines" which caused heavy damage in recent weeks "are capable of exploding far below the keel of any steel vessel."

As a result, it was said, England is now being compelled to replate the keels of all her war vessels.

WINNIE RUTH'S TRAIL LOST BY PRISON HOUNDS

dogs were led in growing circles in the hope they would again pick up the scent.

Early Escape Recalled

Although the "blonde tigress" had only a comparative short start on the pursuers they were not optimistic concerning her early detection, remembering the cunning she displayed in remaining at large for six days after her first escape from the hospital last October.

Apparently using the same technique which enabled her to previously flee the institution, Mrs. Judd was believed to have obtained a key to the back door of her ward and casually walked away. No fence surrounds the institution, although one is being built.

Blonde Winnie was last seen at 6:30 p. m. yesterday when nurses checked occupants of her ward. They said that while she appeared nervous and upset, there was no indication she had thoughts of fleeing.

Sheriff Lon Jordan, declared Mrs. Judd's first escape wasn't all luck and neither was this one.

The same thought was voiced by Kel Fox, of the governor's secretarial staff, expressed belief that Mrs. Judd had "outside help" or a passkey.

Reports were current when Mrs. Judd fled before that a former attaché might have assisted and there were rumors of a "mad house romance."

Police placed guards at the home in Phoenix of Mrs. Judd's aged parents, the Rev. and Mrs. H. J. McKinnell, because when she fled previously Mrs. Judd visited her father and mother and left a note for Gov. Robert Jones that she would surrender after seeing her husband, Dr. W. C. Judd, in Los Angeles.

On the evening of Oct. 30, six days after her first mysterious disappearance, Mrs. Judd was detected stealing out of the home of one of the hospital employees. She had gone there while the employee was away to obtain food. She was put to bed in a weakened condition and was later confined in a solitary room until about a week ago, when she was again allowed to mingle with other inmates.

During a jealous rage in 1931 the "Tiger woman" killed and dismembered Hedvig Samuelson and Agnes Ann Leroi in the Phoenix apartment the three intimate friends shared. She shipped their remains to Los Angeles and followed by train. Mrs. Judd was convicted of murder and sentenced to hang, she was adjudged insane and committed to the Arizona mental hospital.

to give battle. They then returned safely to their home base.

Authorities expressed belief that the German submarine which was attacked by a Royal Air Force plane carried 60 or 70 men to the bottom when it was surprised and bombed almost out of the water in the North Sea. The plane's bomb struck the base of the conning tower, and the explosion hurled sections of the U-boat high in the air. Not a single survivor could be seen afterward by the crew of the plane.

Simultaneously the landing of German submarine men at a Scottish port indicated still another submersible had been caught and put out of commission by British warships.

BERLIN, Dec. 4 — Britain's air raid against Germany's Helgoland Island base succeeded merely in sinking one fishing trawler, the German high command announced today.

"There were no particular events on the Western Front," stated a communique.

"British planes attempted to attack Helgoland yesterday. Early anti-aircraft action prevented them from carrying out the attack as planned.

"There was no damage except one hit on a small fishing trawler."

COMING SUNDAY 'Honeymoon In Bali'

RUSSIANS MASS SOLDIERS, SHIPS IN ARCTIC AREA

Bitter Fighting Reported From Petsamo District; Nickel City Burning

near Terijoki at the Carelian battle front. Some reports placed the number of Russian mine victims at 1,000.

Authorities also claimed that twelve Soviet raiding planes were "annihilated" and that a whole company of Russian parachute troops was captured when they landed behind the Finnish defense lines.

Still other reports said that several hundred Russian soldiers were drowned when ice broke under them as Soviet shock troops and artillery units advanced over frozen marshes north of Lake Ladoga.

Owing to a heavy snowstorm, there were no Russian air attacks on Helsingfors or other sections of southern Finland up until noon, Helsingfors time.

Most residents of the city had been evacuated, but fears were expressed that many of the refugees might freeze to death on the icy roads leading from the city.

Ski Troops Used

(A Reuter dispatch from Amsterdam said it was reported that picked companies of Finnish ski troops were attacking Russians along the Carelian and eastern borders, but that the heavy snow prevented any large-scale action. (According to the London Daily Telegraph, Russian aircraft dropped leaflets on Helsingfors warning that 500 Soviet bombers would attack the city today. A Stockholm report said fears were expressed that gas bombs might be used in the next raid on the capital. (This fear was said to have resulted from Moscow charges that Finnish troops had fought the Russians with poison gas. These charges were denied.)

Eighteen more Soviet tanks were destroyed and Finland's defenders, while retreating from some positions, threw back repeated Russian attacks against their eastern lines reaching from the Arctic to the Carelian isthmus. It was announced that the Ryti government sent to Moscow, through the Swedish minister, an offer to negotiate a settlement which would respect Finland's sovereign interests.

A communiqué said Moscow was approached "with an inquiry as to whether the Soviet government was prepared to open negotiations for a peaceful settlement."

"No reply so far has been received," the statement added.

Sympathy Cited

In addition, Foreign Minister V. A. Tanner asserted that Finland would never give way to "Russian terror" and added that Finland would have "effective help" as well as sympathy of the rest of the world.

Decision to seek a settlement with Moscow coincided with a Finnish appeal to the League of Nations for action to halt the Red invasion. This did not mean surrender by Finland, an announcement stated, but merely demonstrated Finnish willingness to enter negotiations.

Finnish combat planes and anti-aircraft guns accounted for the Russian squadron of 12 planes when the latter attempted to bomb a power station at Imatra, northwest of the Carelian isthmus. Eleven were shot down in flames and the twelfth was forced to land and its crew captured.

The company of Russian parachutists was disarmed and taken prisoner after alighting at Villmanstrand, 42 miles northwest of the southeastern port of Viborg.

Finnish advisers also said four Soviet infantry companies were "destroyed" near Metsapilvi north of Lake Ladoga, with 300 Red army men killed and 700 captured.

An official communiqué said 44 Soviet tanks were known to have been destroyed and 24 Soviet planes shot down since beginning of the war, while only two Finnish planes were lost. At least 82 civilians were killed and 182 wounded in Russian air raids, most of them in Helsingfors, according to official figures.

KERENSKY SAYS PEOPLE UNAWARE OF FINN WAR

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Russia's invasion of Finland is being carried on without either the consent or knowledge of the Russian people, it was charged today by Alexander Kerensky, former Russian premier and leader of the 1917 revolution which overthrew the czar.

A truly democratic government in Russia, Kerensky said, would have peacefully accomplished any revision of Finland's frontiers necessary for Russia's security.

EXPLOSIVES LOCATED ON LAND NEAR PLANE PLANT

PATERSON, N. J., Dec. 4.—Police and G-men today were investigating a cache of explosives found in shrubbery two miles from the Wright Aeronautical Corporation factory to determine whether it indicated a possible sabotage plot against the plant now turning out airplane motors for Great Britain and France.

A half-ton of dynamite, 25 pounds of black powder and 100 percussion caps were found.

paign against England is expected to take these forms:

1—A ring of mines all around the British Isles.
2—Creation of a circle of "forbidden zones" in which unrestricted submarine warfare will be carried out.
3—Increased U-boat activities throughout British waters.

Germany intensified its efforts to dissuade neutral nations from sending ships to England by emphasizing the risks involved. Sea planes can easily strew mines in the shipping lanes, spokesmen declared, while the so-called "magnetic mines" which caused heavy damage in recent weeks "are capable of exploding far below the keel of any steel vessel."

As a result, it was said, England is now being compelled to replace the keels of all her war vessels.

dogs were led in growing circles in the hope they would again pick up the scent.

Early Escape Recalled
Although the "blonde tigress" had only a comparative short start on the pursuers they were not optimistic concerning her early detection, remembering the cunning she displayed in remaining at large for six days after her first escape from the hospital last October.

Apparently using the same technique which enabled her to previously flee the institution, Mrs. Judd was believed to have obtained a key to the back door of her ward and casually walked away. No fence surrounds the institution, although one is being built.

Blonde Winnie was last seen at 6:30 p. m. yesterday when nurses checked occupants of her ward. They said that while she appeared nervous and upset, there was no indication she had thoughts of fleeing.

Sheriff Lon Jordan, declared Mrs. Judd's first escape wasn't all luck and neither was this one.

The same thought was voiced by Kel Fox, of the governor's secretarial staff, expressed belief that Mrs. Judd had "outside help" or a passkey.

Reports were current when Mrs. Judd fled before that a former attack might have assisted and there were rumors of a "mad house romance."

Police placed guards at the home in Phoenix of Mrs. Judd's aged parents, the Rev. and Mrs. H. J. McKinnell, because when she fled previously Mrs. Judd visited her father and mother and left a note for Gov. Robert Jones that she would surrender after seeing her husband, Dr. W. C. Judd, in Los Angeles.

On the evening of Oct. 30, six days after her first mysterious disappearance, Mrs. Judd was detected stealing out of the home of one of the hospital employees. She had gone there while the employee was away to obtain food. She was put to bed in a weakened condition and was later confined in a solitary room until about a week ago, when she was again allowed to mingle with other inmates.

During a jealous rage in 1931 the "Tiger woman" killed and dismembered Hedvig Samuelson and Agnes Ann Leroi in the Phoenix apartment the three intimate friends shared. She shipped their remains to Los Angeles and followed by train. After Mrs. Judd was convicted of murder and sentenced to hang, she was adjudged insane and committed to the Arizona mental hospital.

BULLYING DIPLOMACY
THE British prime minister hit the nail on the head when, explaining the British war aims last Sunday, he challenged "that aggressive, bullying mentality which seeks to dominate other people by force."
It does seem as if the prime purpose of the less polite form of government now in vogue abroad is, in the apt British phrase, "shoving people around." We Americans have called it, somewhat less delicately, "kicking people around." In current European usage, either term is a polite synonym for torturing and killing people whose political and economic ideas you dislike. The great current examples are, of course, Nazi Germany and Communist Russia, with Italy, now partially reformed, trailing the big dictatorships.
It is to the glory of democracy that it doesn't do that sort of thing. Wherefore democracy, once regarded as a "rough-neck" mode of life and government, has become the political faith of gentlemen. It is the arbitrary rulers and their henchmen who now are roughnecks.
John Bull himself used to be in that objectionable class, and kicked people around in many quarters when he was building his empire. "But that's all shoved behind 'im, long ago an' fur away," and he's very decent, for so big a landholder, in this century.

HISTORIC TREASURES
A LOG courthouse built 223 years ago is now being restored as a prize historical exhibit at Cahokia, Ill. It has traveled more than most buildings do, having been displayed at the World's Fair in St. Louis and by the Chicago Historical Society. It was once a residence, and once a saloon, before it became a courthouse.
Since it has been returned to the site on which it was originally erected, citizens are taking pride in its correct restoration. Old wrought-iron shutter hinges, door handles and other hardware were found in the excavation and are being carefully reproduced for use on the house. Copies of the original, rough-hewn furniture will be made, too, in order to make the completed courthouse as authentic as possible.
Americans traveling abroad have sometimes felt a little embarrassed by the extreme youth of their own nation. They are learning now that this country really has a good deal of historical wealth. They are beginning to take care of surviving relics, restore dilapidated structures and make new models of others.
Such turning back to our past is natural and worth while so long as it does not take our eyes too much off the future.

WORLD AT A GLANCE —By— Charles P. Stewart
IN ALL THE straw polls I've seen to date Thomas E. Dewey has been the public's favorite for the Republican presidential nomination in 1940, and Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg has trailed him. In turn, other "possibilities" have trailed Vandenberg, in varying orders of precedence.
This may be the correct verdict, as to the rank-and-file of GOP voters.
However, it isn't the conclusion that I'd draw from talks with numbers of professional politicians in Washington, where they assemble representatively from every corner of the country.
These gentry unquestionably give a plurality in favor of Vandenberg, with Dewey not even in second place on the list. Their second choice seems to be Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio.
Taft, by the way, doesn't like straw polls. He says they ought to be investigated, intimating that he suspects they're doctored. Maybe he's feeling differently about it if they put him at the top of the scroll. They don't, though, so perhaps he's prejudiced. No complaints are heard from Tom Dewey.
GLAMOROUS, ALL RIGHT

U. S. TRYING MAGNETIC MINES
WASHINGTON—There is an excellent reason why the U. S. Navy has been so secretive regarding the German magnetic mines which have been causing such disaster to Allied shipping. Probably it will be denied, but the real fact is that the Navy has been experimenting with this type of mine itself.
Behind the scenes, the British have known the exact make-up of the German mines for some time. So also have our own experts.
The first German magnetic mine was found washed up on the coast of Norway, several weeks before the Germans began their campaign in the English Channel. Apparently, the Germans at that time were experimenting with the mine in Norwegian waters.
The British, however, didn't pay much attention to the new mine. So when the Nazis began their campaign in earnest, Allied shipping was caught completely off base. Since then, more mines have been washed up off the English coast, and have been taken to pieces by the British.
The principle on which the mine works is a magnetic compass. The needle of the compass point normally north. But when a large body of steel passes nearby, the needle is deflected from the north, and this swerving of the needle ignites the high explosive inside the mine.
The mine lies at the bottom of the sea and does not rise to the top. Therefore, it is effective only in shallow water. But as deadly as if it actually struck the ship itself.
SHALLOW WATER WEAPON
Because the mines are effective only in relatively shallow water, they have been concentrated in and around the English Channel. They would be useless if strewn around the deep Atlantic.
One important effect which they have had on German warfare is to force all Nazi submarines out of control waters. Submarines explode the mines just as easily as merchant vessels, in fact more easily. So the Germans have to keep their U-boats in the deep Atlantic or at home.
Reports from the British navy received in official quarters are that the British now have the mine terror licked. The British solution is to tow a large piece of iron behind a wooden boat. The wooden boat does not set off the magnetic mine, but the iron which follows in its wake, does.
At present the British have abandoned the old fashioned mine sweeper, and are literally combing the seas around the English Channel. They may be too optimistic, but they think that in another week, or even less, German's mines will be all exploded.
Meanwhile the British air corps is extra diligent to prevent Nazi planes from dropping more mines around the English Channel. They are not entirely sure, but they believe most of the mines were dropped from the air, unless some were planted by disguised Nazi wooden vessels.

A BOOK which, in these uncertain times for mankind's future, should be in every home, certainly in every college and high school library, is Otto Neurath's Modern Man in the Making (A. A. Knopf, 1939).
It shows, largely by means of the new-fashioned and fascinating pictorial graphs, the changes which have occurred in man's life in the modern world—in industry, politics, environment, daily comforts, surroundings, length of life, disease.
The latter subjects are, of course, the ones which interest us in this column.
Taking a clock dial, the author divides it into three sectors—red for work, black for sleep, blue for leisure. The average man (and woman) of the Middle Ages, indeed, up to the eighteenth century, worked 14 hours of the 24, slept eight and played two. The modern man works eight, sleeps eight and plays eight. You know that all the time, but on the graph it seems more important.
Tuberculosis, which holds the spotlight in this Christmas seal period, is dealt with on page 97. Never have I seen a more striking representation of the relationship of poverty to tuberculosis. Three Brooklyn districts are compared—Flatbush, Bedford and Red Hook-Gowanus. The average rent and a symbol of the kind of house or apartment inhabited are shown on one side of a line—on the other side a graveyard with crosses. The crosses represent the deaths per 10,000 population per annum. In Flatbush the rent is $60, the house has three windows and there are three crosses in the graveyard. In Bedford the rent is $50; two windows; five crosses. In Red Hook-Gowanus the rent is $30; one window; ten crosses.
Population trends in relation to disease, birth, death and suicide give material for thought.
Is life in the city unhealthy? We have always been taught to believe so. The facts:
Growing urbanization has reduced disease. It has reduced the birth rate and decreased the death rate. In Great Britain, in 1940, 20 per cent of the population lived in towns of 100,000 or over; there were 25 deaths per 1,000 population annually in the whole country. In 1930, in Great Britain, 45 per cent of the population lived in cities of 100,000 or over; there were 15 deaths per 1,000 population annually in the whole country.
We are developing a civilization top-heavy with old people. Arranging the population age groups by decades, from 0-10 years up to 70-80, in 1871 the resultant graph looks like a pyramid; in 1931 it looks like the outline of an apple, with a clean slice off the bottom.
Infant mortality is an old story but it shows up in a revealing way in the graph. In New York, from 1900-1902, there were 13 graves; in 1930-1932, per same number of population, five and one-half.
QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
G. V. H.: "Is it true that the telephone harbors no disease germs? What about baby's toys?"
Answer:—Most germs that affect human beings die a short time after they leave the body, especially if they light on a smooth, hard surface like a telephone receiver. Just how much cross infection of respiratory diseases come from telephones has never been accurately studied. But the incidence must be pretty low. Baby's toys seldom carry disease germs. The most dangerous possibility is the transmission of scarlet fever. A child who is convalescing from scarlet fever should be given only toys and books that can be burnt at the conclusion of convalescence.

"TELL BILL GOODBYE"
By Marie Blizard

THE CHARACTERS:
FABIENNE SEYMOUR, rich, young and beautiful.
NICKY BARTLETT, wealthy and in love with Fabienne.
ELLEN CHAPMAN, young and capable mistress of Willowhough house.
DR. BILL MALLORY, close friend of Ellen's.
YESTERDAY: Fabienne expected to return to her ancestral home in Maryland for Christmas, but a death in the family alters her plans and she is obliged to remain in New York alone.
CHAPTER FIFTEEN
PUT ON your coat, Fabienne. Put on your arctics and your smart little hat. Muster your young singers to carol out Christmas joy. What business have you feeling sorry for yourself? Dick's in California with the Havlands. Gertrude's at Cannes. Nicky is having a Christmas Eve party. And you're in New York with nothing to do on the one day of the year when no one wants to be alone.
But you're not alone. Think of all the people you know in New York. People who'll get up at noon and drink the day away. But they're there if you want them.
Meanwhile you've got to spread Christmas cheer.
In her purse there was a roll of crisp new one-dollar bills. In a big basket in her office, there were one hundred and ten presents. Pocket-books and harmonicas, toy trains and dancing dolls, gay handbags and bright neckties. Fabienne's presents to be added to the settlement gifts. For Nicky, Gertrude and the rest of her family, she had bought one book each; the rest of her Christmas money she had spent to bring pleasure to those who needed it more.
She tried to think of that, instead of the loneliness of her expensive hotel room, when she started out with her little band on their itinerary to cover the neighborhood.
"Si-lent night . . . 4000-oh-ly night . . ."
Time and time again the childish voices lifted in the old hymn, with ash cans for a background and an elevated rumbling overhead; but with lifted, shining faces that, drew listening, moved audiences as they toured the neighboring blocks.
From the shops and the bars, the subway kiosks and tenements their audiences applauded and asked for more, called cheery greetings.
"A merry Christmas to you!"
They called back and moved on.
Back to the settlement house: eight o'clock. Santa Claus—Mr. Brown (the athletic instructor)—stood merry and very Christmas-like in his pillow-padded red suit and beard. The presents were distributed and hastily opened. "Auld Lang Sygn" was sung. The lights of the Christmas tree burned brightly as they fled out of the hall, eager to be away, to take their treasures home.
Fabienne's bags were in her office.
Ellen said, "A merry, merry Christmas to you, Fabienne. I hope it's the happiest of holidays for you. We'll look for you the day after New Year's. Sure you don't want me to drive you to the station?"
"No, thanks, Ellen. I'll get a cab. Run along now. You've been working hard all day. And I wish you a very happy holiday, too."
She went to the door with Ellen and returned to her office with heavy footsteps. She put the bags in a supply closet and turned off the lights.
At the corner of the street she raised her hand to hail a taxi and changed her mind. She had nothing to do with her Christmas Eve. She might as well make the most of it and be awake and walk for herself. She plunged her hands into her pockets and set off up the crowded street.
Across Henderson street, down Blake street, in the general direction of Fifth avenue, she pushed forward, stopped only by the red traffic lights.
Suddenly a small figure darted in and out of the traffic and Benny Kormendi caught up with her.
"Benny! What is a little boy like you doing out at this time?" It was ten o'clock and Benny was only six.
His small face worked with excitement. "We got a new kid, Miss Seymour, and Mom can't go out to get nothing to eat. I gotta go see my aunt and get something for her to rest of the kids."
"You mean you have a new baby at your house?" She was remembering the Kormendi family. Seven children and the father hadn't worked in two years. "And you haven't anything to eat?"
"My aunt'll give us something, he told her."
"Where does she live?"
He told her an address that was two miles or more away.
"Come with me," she said, taking his hand. There were plenty of stores in the neighborhood. You could buy any and all of the necessities of life in that neighborhood.
Fabienne bought all that she could think of. Small blankets—not very good ones, but warm—and a hot water bottle. She bought dolls and stockings and a holly wreath. And food; meat and vegetables, milk and bread and ice cream. When she and Benny could carry no more, she said, "Lead on, Benny, we'll take your mother a Christmas present."
The Kormendis—all ten of them—lived in two drearful little rooms. But when Fabienne came into them, with her arms filled, the Christmas spirit came with her. Mrs. Kormendi smiled and cried a

To live is not merely to breathe, it is to act; it is to make use of our organs, senses, faculties, of all those parts of ourselves which give us the feeling of existence. BULLYING DIPLOMACY

THE British prime minister hit the nail on the head when, explaining the British war aims last Sunday, he challenged "that aggressive, bullying mentality which seeks to dominate other people by force."

It does seem as if the prime purpose of the less polite form of government now in vogue abroad is, in the apt British phrase, "shoving people around." We Americans have called it, somewhat less delicately, "kicking people around." In current European usage, either term is a polite synonym for torturing and killing people whose political and economic ideas you dislike. The great current examples are, of course, Nazi Germany and Communist Russia, with Italy, now partially reformed, trailing the big dictatorships.

It is to the glory of democracy that it doesn't do that sort of thing. Wherefore democracy, once regarded as a "rough-neck" mode of life and government, has become the political faith of gentlemen. It is the arbitrary rulers and their henchmen who now are roughnecks.

John Bull himself used to be in that objectionable class, and kicked people around in many quarters when he was building his empire. "But that's all shoved behind 'im, long ago an' fur away," and he's very decent, for so big a landholder, in this century.

HISTORIC TREASURES

A LOG courthouse built 223 years ago is now being restored as a prize historical exhibit at Cahokia, Ill. It has traveled more than most buildings do, having been displayed at the World's Fair in St. Louis and by the Chicago Historical Society. It was once a residence, and once a saloon, before it became a courthouse.

Since it has been returned to the site on which it was originally erected, citizens are taking pride in its correct restoration. Old wrought-iron shutter hinges, door handles and other hardware were found in the excavation and are being carefully reproduced for use on the house. Copies of the original, rough-hewn furniture will be made, too, in order to make the completed courthouse as authentic as possible.

Americans traveling abroad have sometimes felt a little embarrassed by the extreme youth of their own nation. They are learning now that this country really has a good deal of historical wealth. They are beginning to take care of surviving relics, restore dilapidated structures and make new models of others.

Such turning back to our past is natural and worth while so long as it does not take our eyes too much off the future.

WORLD AT A GLANCE.....—By—
Charles P. Stewart

IN ALL THE straw polls I've seen to date Thomas E. Dewey has been the public's favorite for the Republican presidential nomination in 1940, and Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg has trailed him. In turn, other "possibilities" have trailed Vandenberg, in varying orders of precedence.

This may be the correct verdict, as to the rank-and-file of GOP voters.

However, it isn't the conclusion that I'd draw from talks with numbers of professional politicians in Washington, where they assemble representatively from every corner of the country.

These gentry unquestionably give a plurality in favor of Vandenberg, with Dewey not even in second place on the list. Their second choice seems to be Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio.

Taft, by the way, doesn't like straw polls. He says they ought to be investigated, intimating that he suspects they're doctored. Maybe he'd feel differently about it if they put him at the top of the scroll. They don't, though, so perhaps he's prejudiced. No complaints are heard from Tom Dewey.

Just how much cross infection of respiratory diseases come from telephones has never been accurately studied. But the incidence must be pretty low. Baby's toys seldom carry disease germs. The most dangerous possibility is the transmission of scarlet fever. A child who is convalescing from scarlet fever should be given only toys and books that can be burnt at the conclusion of convalescence.

For Monday, December 4

MONDAY's astrological forecast is for a day of extremely sudden and surprising events, probably of far-reaching effect on the future destiny. Events of major importance bound into being with the force and unexpectedness of a whirlwind. These make for definite progress or unprecedented prosperity, perhaps in connection with large corporations, diplomatic, political or fraternal organizations.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a sudden avalanche of events, descending with precipitancy and breath-taking surprise. These events may have far-reaching developments, making for unexpected progress and prosperity, with corporations, secret bodies, political or diplomatic groups figuring conspicuously. There is hint of a bequest or other windfall in this swift-moving visitation.

"TELL BILL GOODBYE"

By Marie Blizzard

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

SYNOPSIS

THE CHARACTERS:
FABIENNE SEYMOUR, rich, young and beautiful.
NICKY BARTLETT, wealthy and in love with Fabienne.
ELLEN CHAPMAN, young and capable mistress of Willowby house.
DR. BILL MALLORY, close friend of Ellen's.

YESTERDAY: Fabienne expected to return to her ancestral home in Maryland for Christmas, but a death in the family alters her plans and she is obliged to remain in New York alone.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

PUT ON your coat, Fabienne. Put on your arctics and your smart little hat. Muster your young singers to carol out Christmas joy. What business have you feeling sorry for yourself? Dick's in California with the Havlands. Gertrude's at Cannes. Nicky is having a Christmas Eve party. And you're in New York with nothing to do on the one day of the year when no one wants to be alone.

But you're not alone. Think of all the people you know in New York. People who'll get up at noon and drink the day away. But they're there if you want them.

Meanwhile you've got to spread Christmas cheer.

In her purse there was a roll of crisp new one-dollar bills. In a big basket in her office, there were one hundred and ten presents. Pocket-books and harmonicas, toy trains and dancing dolls, gay bandanas and bright neckties. Fabienne's presents to be added to the settlement gift. For Nicky, Gertrude and the rest of her family, she had bought one book each; the rest of her Christmas money she had spent to bring pleasure to those who needed it more.

She tried to think of that, instead of the loneliness of her expensive hotel room, when she started out with her little band on their itinerary to cover the neighborhood.

"Si-l-lent night . . . 4000-oh-ly night . . ."

Time and time again the childish voices lifted in the old hymn, with ash cans for a background and an elevated rumbling overhead; but with lifted, shining faces that drew listening, moved audiences as they toured the neighboring blocks.

From the shops and the bars, the subway kiosks and tenements their audiences applauded and asked for more, called cheery greetings.

"A merry Christmas to you!"

"A merry Christmas to you!"

They called back and moved on.

Back to the settlement house: eight o'clock. Santa Claus—Mr. Brown (the athletic instructor)—stood merry and very Christmas-like in his pillow-padded red suit and beard. The presents were distributed and hastily opened. "Auld Lang Sygn" was sung. The lights of the Christmas tree burned brightly as they fled out of the hall, eager to be away, to take their treasures home.

Fabienne's bags were in her office.

Ellen said, "A merry, merry Christmas to you, Fabienne. I hope it's the happiest of holidays for you. We'll look for you the day after New Year's. Sure you don't want me to drive you to the station?"

"No, thanks, Ellen. I'll get a cab. Run along now. You've been working hard all day. And I wish you a very happy holiday, too."

She went to the door with Ellen and returned to her office with heavy footsteps. She put the bags in a supply closet and turned off the lights.

At the corner of the street she raised her hand to hail a taxi and changed her mind. She had nothing to do with her Christmas Eve. She might as well walk and tire herself out so that she would not lie awake and be sorry for herself. She plunged her hands into her pockets and set off up the crowded street.

Across Henderson street, down Blake street, in the general direction of Fifth avenue, she pushed forward, stopped only by the red traffic lights.

Suddenly a small figure darted in and out of the traffic and Benny Kormendi caught up with her.

"Benny! What is a little boy like you doing out at this time?" It was ten o'clock and Benny was only six.

His small face worked with excitement. "We got a new kid, Miss Seymour, and Mom can't go out to get nothing to eat. I gotta go see my aunt and get something for the rest of the kids."

"You mean you have a new baby at your house?" She was remembering the Kormendi family. Seven children and the father hadn't worked in two years. "And you haven't anything to eat?"

"My aunt'll give us something, he told her."

"Where does she live?"

He told her an address that was two miles or more away.

"Come with me," she said, taking his hand. There were plenty of stores in the neighborhood. You could buy any and all of the necessities of life in that neighborhood.

Fabienne bought all that she could think of. Small blankets—not very good ones, but warm—and a hot water bottle. She bought dolls and stockings and a holly wreath. And food: meat and vegetables, milk and bread and ice cream. When she and Benny could carry no more, she said, "Lead on, Benny, we'll take your mother a Christmas present."

The Kormendi's—all ten of them—lived in two dreadful little rooms. But when Fabienne came into them, with her arms filled, the Christmas spirit came with her. Mrs. Kormendi smiled and cried a little. The children screamed and shouted their glee; the father promised her that God would bless her forever.

"Ain't you goin' away, Miss Seymour?" one of the older girls asked. "I s'en your bag in the office."

Fabienne was drawing on her gloves, anxious to be out of doors. "I was, Kathy," she said. "But now I'm not. I had some bad news so I'm staying in New York. Well, I must be getting on my way. Good luck to all of you!"

She felt better, less lonely when she left the tenement apartment into which she had brought so much happiness. But when she got back to her own room, they were cheerless and she sat down in her fur coat and scowled at the telephone that would have summoned any number of invitations.

Quite unexpectedly it rang.

She said, "Hello!" Surprise still was in her voice.

Ellen's voice answered her.

"Nite wit!" Ellen said. "What's all this Big Brave Girl stunt of yours? Thought you were safely off to merryment in Maryland?"

"How did you know I wasn't?"

"I stopped in at the Kormendi's . . . just heard they had a new baby. They told me."

"That's very sweet of you, Ellen. A merry Christmas again."

"Look here, I didn't call you up to exchange greetings. I'm downstairs in your lobby, with Bill. We're going to midnight mass. It starts in ten minutes. Come right straight down. You're coming with us."

Midnight mass? Fabienne? She hadn't been inside a church for ten years. She wouldn't know how to act. She said, "All right, I'll be right down."

I MUST NEVER, NEVER FORGET THIS. WHENEVER LIFE IS TOO MUCH FOR ME, TOO CONFUSED, TOO CROWDED, I MUST REMEMBER THIS.

Her eyes upon the altar, her profile pure in her listening attitude, Fabienne committed what she saw and felt to the deepest part of her memory during that midnight mass.

Bill was beside her. Ellen, too. But there was something else closer, dramatized by the great sound of the organ, the lighted tapers, the priests upon the altar. Something two thousand years old and beautiful beyond description.

A Presence.

She wished that she had gifts to bring to the child who lay so pure, so touching in the arms of His mother.

The bells pealed on the altar and the people slid forward to their knees and bowed their heads.

Fabienne could not remember a prayer, but she bowed her head, feeling a lump in her throat, and she said, "Oh, thank Thee for this night!"

One-Minute Test

1. How old must a person be to become a United States senator?

2. What country has the lowest illiteracy rate in the world?

3. What state has given the United States the greatest number of presidents?

Words of Wisdom

To live is not merely to breathe, it is to act; it is to make use of our organs, senses, faculties, of all those parts of ourselves which give us the feeling of existence. The man who has lived longest is not the man who has counted most years, but he who has enjoyed life most. Such a one was buried a hundred years old, but he was dead from his birth. He would have gained by dying young, at least he would have lived till that time. —Rousseau.

Hints on Etiquette

It is correct to touch one's lips with the tips of fingers which have been dipped in a finger bowl.

Today's Horoscope

Good, steady progress will be the lot of those whose birthday is today. Much prosperity is indicated, and there is some prospect of gain by inheritance. A child born on this date will be sensitive and affectionate; also somewhat dreamy and impressionable. Much of the success in the life of such a child will depend upon wise upbringing.

One-Minute Test Answers

Troutman-Melvin Vows Exchanged in Church

Friends Of Couple Fill Auditorium For Service

Deeply impressive in its religious significance was the service Sunday evening at Trinity Lutheran Church when Miss Roma Lucille Melvin and Mr. Gladden Troutman were united in marriage. Dr. G. J. Troutman, father of the bridegroom, performed the double ring ceremony, the Rev. George L. Troutman, brother of the bridegroom, preaching the nuptial sermon on the subject, "How to Establish a Christian Home." The church was filled to capacity for the service.

Decorations of green and white were effectively carried out with spruce branches and white candles, baskets of large white chrysanthemums forming the leading motif. Balustrades of spruce led to the altar, the graduated steps of the railing being topped with burning white tapers surrounded with fern fronds in gleaming white pots. Single candles burned amid the spruce which decorated the sides of the auditorium, and five branched candelabra with burning white candles were disposed across the choir loft and chancel.

Starting at 6 p. m., Mrs. Karl Herrmann, church organist, played nuptial music, Mrs. George L. Troutman singing two solos, "Oh, Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly". She also sang a wedding hymn at the close of the sermon. As the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March filled the room, Mr. Carl Palm and Mr. Galen Mowery, the ushers, led the bride party to the chancel, where the bridegroom and Mr. Ned Dresbach, his best man, had taken their places.

Miss Ruth Moats, as bridesmaid, was gowned in Persian rose taffeta, the smartly styled skirt finishing at the bottom with a deep ruffle. A sweetheart neckline and puff sleeves caught with shirring were the effective details of the bodice. She carried a round bouquet of white pompons and pink rose buds.

Mrs. Russell Skaggs, matron of honor, wore grapevine taffeta, the square neckline and short puff sleeves being finished with white lace banding run with narrow velvet ribbon. She carried a bouquet similar to that of the bridesmaid.

Little Miss Ruth Troutman, a niece of the bridegroom, carrying a basket of white pompons and pink roses and wearing a floor length blue taffeta frock, made a delightfully quaint flower girl.

White taffeta fashioned on princess lines was chosen by Miss Melvin for her wedding gown. The simple styling of the frock included a sweetheart neckline, sleeves puffed at the shoulders fitting tightly from the elbow to the wrists where they finished with points over the hands, and a long court train. Her all white bouquet was of rose buds. A finger tip length veil of bridal illusion fell from a coronet of orange blossoms and lilies-of-the-valley. Miss Melvin was given in marriage by Mr. Stanley Melvin, her brother.

The bride party was seated for the nuptial sermon. Stressing the requisites of a Christian home, the Rev. Mr. Troutman used a beautiful bouquet of roses, violets, lilies-of-the-valley and carnations as symbolic of marriage, telling of the virtues represented by each flower. At the close of his talk, he presented the flowers to his brother.

After the bride and bridegroom repeated their vows before Dr. Troutman, an informal reception was held at the parsonage. Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Melvin, parents of the bride, were hosts at the affair, entertaining the members of the wedding party and the immediate families.

During the evening, Mr. Troutman and his bride left for a brief wedding trip, after which they will establish their home at 155 East Union Street. For traveling, Mrs. Troutman wore a green outfit with black accessories.

The bride is a graduate of Jackson Township High School. Mr. Troutman, who was graduated from Circleville High School

GIANTS VICTORS OVER REDSKINS; KICK DEBATED

By International News Service

It will be the New York Giants against the Green Bay Packers at Milwaukee next Sunday for the National Pro Football league championship.

But that future game was far overshadowed today by the general hubbub arising from the decision of Football Referee Bill Halloran who ruled that "Bo" Russell's place kick try, a $50,000 boot, missed the crossbar by inches and so awarded the Giants a 9 to 7 decision over the Washington Redskins and the Eastern division pennant.

The season produced few dramatic situations as that which aroused the 62,530 fans jammed into the Polo Grounds yesterday for the crucial Giants and Washington Redskins battle. Forty seconds remained to play. The Redskins were on the Giants' eight yard line and a three point place kick would have given them the game.

The ball was passed, Russell, a first year substitute, swung his toe. The ball zoomed for the uprights. The field sat in silence, stunned by the uncertainty. But Halloran took a good look and yelled: "no goal."

Pandemonium broke out, many agreeing with the referee and many disagreeing. The Redskins, to whom the decision meant bitter frustration and the loss of a game they were certain they had won, lost their control temporarily. Led by Coach Ray Flaherty, the players rushed from the bench. After the game, one of the Redskins players took a sock at the referee.

"If Halloran has a conscience," Flaherty declared, "he'll never again sleep an untroubled hour. He beat my boys out of $50,000."

The Green Bay Packers shook off a first half slump to come from behind the short end of a 7 to 3 score at the end of the half and score a 12 to 7 victory over the Detroit Lions at Briggs Stadium before 30,699 fans and win the Western championship. Holding the ball in possession most of the last half, the Packers came up close to the Lions' goal line on an automatic safety on a blocked punt in the last period. On fourth down, Clarke Hinkle took the ball over.

At Colorado Springs, before a crowd of less than 10,000, the Cleveland Rams smashed the Philadelphia Eagles 35 to 13 in their season finale.

BASEBALL'S BIG MOGULS GATHER

Cincinnati Scene; Drive On Chain Systems Hinted; Trades Looming?

By Lawton Carver

CINCINNATI, Dec. 4 — Here at the birthplace of baseball's first professional team and the scene of the sudden death finish to the last World Series, representatives of what has come to be known as the national pastime gathered today for the annual meetings of the major and minor leagues lasting through Saturday but, as usual at this annual convocation, the haranguing in executive chambers is expected to run a poor second in the headlines. Briefly, early arrivals from the big cities where the game is a million dollar industry and from the little brush circuits predicted a possible record number of out-standing player trades.

Virtually every club in both major leagues was ready for bartering and potential trades were in the air as early as last night when the vanguard of the hundreds of baseball people arrived for the week-long session marking the first time in years that both the majors and minors have held their conventions jointly.

Landis Awaited

Baseball Commissioner Kene-saw Mountain Landis will not barge onto the premises until Wednesday, but is expected promptly to create at least a mild stir when he shakes his mane and begins cracking down on the evils of chain store baseball. He won't kill baseball's farm systems, but the feeling is general that he will effect a very stringent curb on wholesale inroads among the minors by the rich majors.

One suggested compromise would be limitation of the number of minor league clubs any one big league team may own. This would bring tremendous satisfaction to the owners who have sought to put some strings on the New York Yankees, and those owners probably will be in there battling for anything they can get in that general direction.

Night baseball will come in for considerable conversation, with Connie Mack, the patriarch of the Philadelphia Athletics, understood to be in favor of lifting the limit on the number of night games allowed each club. Currently they can have only seven in each park.

Still another matter to be brought before the house is the suggestion by Larry McPhail, head man of the Brooklyn Dodgers, that in addition to the World Series between the pennant-winners of the two major leagues, all other clubs in the circuits engage in post-season series, with the second place clubs lined up against each other and so on down the line. This plan, however, is expected to get nowhere with great rapidity.

Greenberg-Medwick

Whether First Baseman Hank Greenberg of the Detroit Tigers or Outfielder Joe Medwick of the St. Louis Cardinals would be traded away to never if not greener pastures made the chief topic of discussion. Both are sought by other clubs, according to reports.

The nearest thing to an actual trade was made by the Chicago Cubs, who reportedly offered Shortstop Dick Bartell as bait, and the Boston Bees, whose infielder Eddie Miller was mentioned. Just mentioned that's all apparently, and thus were the rumors that will circulate for a full week started early to get the convention off in customary fashion.

LOS ANGELES KICKERS DEFEAT COLUMBUS '11'

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 4 — The Los Angeles Bulldogs today held their second victory of the season over the Columbus Bullies. Four field goals aided the Bulldogs to upset the Columbus team in a professional football game played at Portland, 19 to 17.

There were scores in every period as the lead saw-sawed back and forth. Late in the last period, Tilly Manton won the game for the California aggregation with a field goal from the 11-yard strip.

Grid Year Nears Close With Champion Missing

By Pat Robinson

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Except for a few scattered games, the football season has ended with no team in the country being able to lay valid claim to a national championship.

Every section produced its quota of fine teams, but no section uncovered a team that would be a sure bet to beat another outstanding team on a given day.

Strength in every section was too uniform for any team to win recognition as an unbeatable gridiron force. Moreover, every team's strength varies from week to week, many of the best running the scale from mediocrity to greatness. For instance, unbeaten Cornell, one of the country's best, barely eked out a 14-12 decision over off-beaten Columbia one week, but the same Cornell team a week later probably would have beaten Columbia by 30 points.

And only last Saturday, Navy which had lost five straight games soundly trounced the highly favored Army, 10 to 0. The Navy team that beat Army would just as surely have beaten some of the teams to which it lost on that particular day.

Out on the coast mighty Southern California had to come from behind on a pass in the last minute of the game to nose out a 9-7 victory over a hitherto ordinary Washington club.

Stanford at Peak
And Stanford, which had dropped eight straight games, finally found itself in the second half against Dartmouth and won out, 14-3. Boston College, beaten early in the year by Florida, has since moved ahead undefeated against stronger clubs and climaxed its year with a sound 14-0 victory over strong Holy Cross.

Fordham earned a good 18-7 verdict over its bitterest rival, N. Y. U., but Duquesne, heretofore unbeaten and tied, had to come from behind to get a 10-10 draw with Detroit.

Baylor was supposed to have a picnic with Rice which had been thoroughly cooked by almost everybody, but had to call on a field goal to win out, 10 to 7. Georgia Tech took over Georgia, 13-0; Southern Methodist beat Texas Christian, 14-7; Tulane won a wild affair from Louisiana State, 33-20; and Washington University of St. Louis won the Missouri Valley conference title by trimming St. Louis, 21-17 in a spectacular battle.

FELLER SIGNS CONTRACT FOR $23,000 NEXT YEAR

CLEVELAND, Dec. 4.—Negotiations making Bob Feller the highest paid Cleveland baseball player in history had been completed today with the young speedball hurler under a one-year contract at $23,000.

Feller signed the 1940 contract after a one-year conference with Alva Bradley, president of the Indians; Vice President Cy C. Slapnicka, and Manager Oscar Vitt.

As Feller left Cleveland for his Van Meter, Ia., home he said he intended to do some quail hunting.

WAITE CLAIMS BUCKEYE TITLE IN 9-7 VICTORY

COLUMBUS, Dec. 4.—Toledo Waite today claimed the prep school mythical state football championship following its 9 to 7 win over Portsmouth in the first annual Buckeye Bowl game in Ohio Stadium.

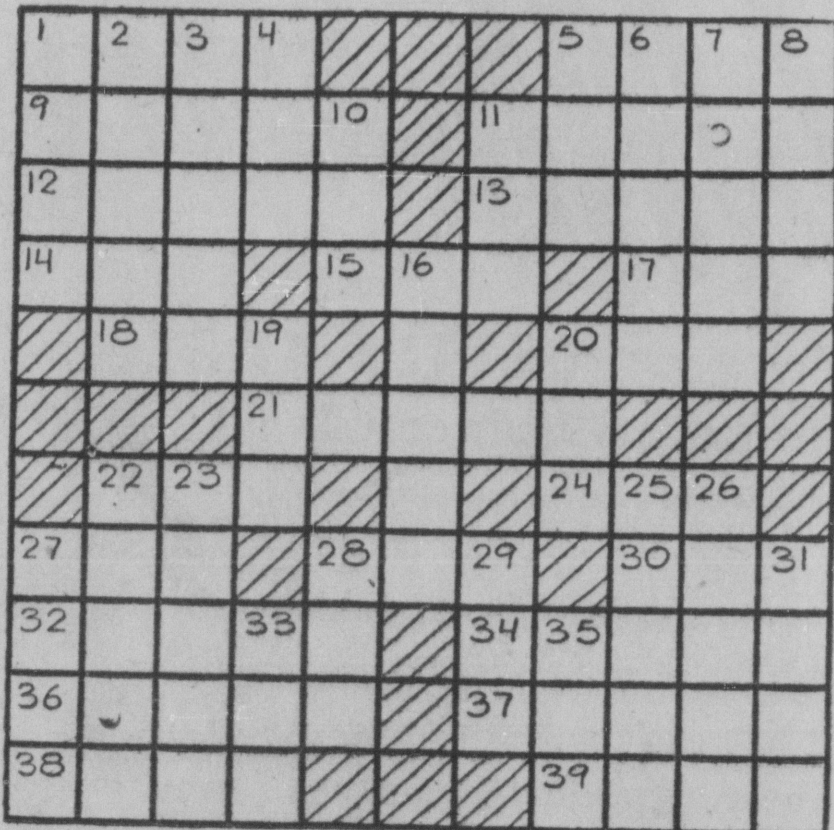

As a basis for their claim, the Waite boys pointed to a season record of 11 wins and no defeats against 10 wins and no losses chalked up by Massillon, also a claimant to the state crown. Massillon refused an invitation to compete in the bowl fray.

Toledo won the contest against Portsmouth when Halfback Bob Wolff, a substitute, booted a 30-yard field goal with only 32 seconds of play remaining. Previously, Portsmouth had led 7 to 6 through a second quarter touchdown and conversion which overshadowed Waite's first period score. It was the first time Portsmouth had been beaten in 25 starts.

A disappointing crowd of 3,947 braved rain and cold to witness the game.

after an investment or two," he added. Feller's next year's salary will bring his total earnings to $75,000 since joining the Indians four years ago. The 21-year-old pitcher won 24 victories for the Tribe last season.

Grid Year Nears Close With Champion Missing

By Pat Robinson

NEW YORK, Dec. 4—Except for a few scattered games, the football season has ended with no team in the country being able to lay valid claim to a national championship.

Every section produced its quota of fine teams, but no section uncovered a team that would be a sure bet to beat another outstanding team on a given day.

Strength in every section was too uniform for any team to win recognition as an unbeatable gridiron force. Moreover, every team's strength varies from week to week, many of the best running the scale from mediocrity to greatness.

For instance, unbeaten Cornell, one of the country's best, barely eked out a 14-12 decision over oft-beaten Columbia one week, but the same Cornell team a week later probably would have beaten Columbia by 30 points.

And only last Saturday, Navy which had lost five straight games, soundly trounced the highly favored Army, 10 to 0. The Navy team that beat Army would just as surely have beaten some of the teams to which it lost on that particular day.

Out on the coast mighty Southern California had to come from behind on a pass in the last minute of the game to nose out a 9-7 victory over a hitherto ordinary Washington club.

Stanford at Peak
And Stanford, which had dropped eight straight games, finally found itself in the second half against Dartmouth and won out, 14-3. Boston College, beaten early in the year by Florida, has since moved ahead undefeated against stronger clubs and climaxed its year with a sound 14-0 victory over strong Holy Cross.

Fordham earned a good 18-7 verdict over its bitterest rival, N. Y. U., but Duquesne, heretofore unbeaten and tied, had to come from behind to get a 10-10 draw with Detroit.

Baylor was supposed to have a picnic with Rice which had been thoroughly cooked by almost everybody, but had to call on a field goal to win out, 10 to 7.

Georgia Tech took over Georgia, 13-0; Southern Methodist beat Texas Christian, 14-7; Tulane won a wild affair from Louisiana State, 33-20; and Washington University of St. Louis won the Missouri Valley conference title by trimming St. Louis, 21-17 in a spectacular battle.

Feller signed the 1940 contract after a one-year conference with Alva Bradley, president of the Indians; Vice President Cy C. Slapnicka, and Manager Oscar Vitt.

As Feller left Cleveland for his Van Meter, Ia., home he said he intended to do some quail hunting.

"I'll spend a little time looking after an investment or two," he added. Feller's next year's salary will bring his total earnings to $75,000 since joining the Indians four years ago. The 21-year-old pitcher won 24 victories for the Tribe last season.

WAITE CLAIMS BUCKEYE TITLE IN 9-7 VICTORY

COLUMBUS, Dec. 4—Toledo Waite today claimed the prep school mythical state football championship following its 9 to 7 win over Portsmouth in the first annual Buckeye Bowl game in Ohio Stadium.

As a basis for their claim, the Waite boys pointed to a season record of 11 wins and no defeats against 10 wins and no losses chalked up by Massillon, also a claimant to the state crown. Massillon refused an invitation to compete in the bowl fray.

Toledo won the contest against Portsmouth when Halfback Bob Wolff, a substitute, booted a 30-yard field goal with only 32 seconds of play remaining. Previously, Portsmouth had led 7 to 6 through a second quarter touchdown and conversion which overshadowed Waite's first period score. It was the first time Portsmouth had been beaten in 25 starts.

A disappointing crowd of 3,947 braved rain and cold to witness the game.

Week end Downpour Puts More Than Half Inch On Record

Residents of Circleville's trading area, parade conscious and accustomed to unusual weather, failed to let a hail storm and rain prevent them from enjoying the Santa Claus celebration Saturday afternoon.

A large crowd gathered in the downtown district for the Santa Claus parade, held despite the weather conditions. The parade included two bands, those of Circleville High School and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, floats, more than 100 costumed marchers, animals, and a display of flags of various nations. Floats, in addition to the one for the Christmas queen, depicted scenes from fairyland, and Mother Goose stories.

The parade formed at Circleville High School, passed through the downtown district and disbanded at the courthouse where Santa distributed treats to children.

Hail Storm Strikes
A hail storm followed by a hard rain hit the city just before the parade started. Light rain fell during the parade.

Light snow fell Saturday night and Sunday. Precipitation Saturday and Sunday amounted to .5 of an inch. The lowest temperature Saturday night was 31. Highest recording Sunday was 38 degrees and the lowest Monday morning 33 degrees.

U. S. Aids in Relief Crisis

HERE is part of a shipment of 17 carloads of food sent to Cleveland, O., by the federal government to aid in the current relief crisis. WPA workers are shown unloading the foodstuffs in a federal warehouse in Cleveland.

The Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

The Senator has been in the Far West on a speaking tour since Congress adjourned and the family has been living at 3802 Gracemere where the Nyes have resided for nearly fifteen years. The British censurers have not let it out, but the British admirals never appointed a board of inquiry to examine the reason for the sinking of the Royal Oak. They knew that any inquiry would reveal that they had taken no precautions to prevent submarines from entering Scapa Flow. Ordinarily, when a warship is even scratched, a board of inquiry investigates.

ASSOCIATED GAS

Believe it or not, but it looks as if the giant Associated Gas and Electric Company, which has bucked Roosevelt more than any other utility, is about to go New Deal. It is considering appointment of Stewart McDonald, head of the Federal Housing Administration, as its new president.

Behind this are two immediate factors: (1) The company needs cash to meet payments on its bonds maturing in March, 1940; and (2) easiest way to get cash is through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Originally Associated Gas applied for $50,000,000 of RFC funds. It will now get $26,000,000 plus a new executive. Jesse Jones, head of the RFC, has strongly recommended Stewart McDonald, so "Stew" may be the man.

Actually there is far more background to the Associated Gas picture than this. And the most dramatic scenes were in the Senate lobbying investigation of 1934, when Howard Hopson, its president, eluded subpoena-chasers for several weeks, later emitting the most scathing diatribes against the New Deal heard from any utility.

TOP-HEAVY COMPANY

Associated Gas is one of the largest and most intricate utilities in the country. It owes about one million dollars to stock and bondholders.

Actually it is controlled by two private trusts, the Mange trust, held by chairman of the board J. I. Mange; the Hopson trust, held by Howard Hopson. These trusts, in turn, control Associated Gas and Electric Company, which has a lot of stock issued against it, but no assets except a claim on the Associated Gas and Electric Corporation.

Under the "Corporation" there are a lot of incestuous corporations, so interlocked that companies at the very bottom own stock in those at the very top. Some stock actually has been issued as $1 of stock and $99 of surplus, and then the company has turned around and paid dividends out of this alleged "surplus". And when "Company" stockholders all have been turned over to the "Corporation".

This is just part of the tangle which Stewart McDonald may have to unravel. (Copyright, 1939, by United Features Syndicate, Inc.)

FIREMEN CALL FOR AID IN DRESSING UP DOLLS

Circleville's firemen are experts when it comes to repair of broken toys, but as dress-makers they just can't qualify. So today a call was issued by the firemen for assistance in providing dresses for many dolls that have been presented for distribution in the Christmas toy program.

"We have many undressed dolls," one fireman said, "and we are unable to dress them. We'd appreciate very much if some of the city's women's organizations would provide some assistance."

FINNS TO CARRY ON SOVIET WAR TO BITTER END

HELSINGFORS, Dec. 4 — Premier Rysto Ryti, head of the new Helsingfors government, maintained today that Finland will see her quarrel with Russia through to the end, no matter how great the odds against her.

In a radio broadcast to the United States the Finnish premier declared the Finnish fight for liberty against the Reds is "furthering creation of a better world."

He said, however, that his government is ready to continue negotiations with the Soviets and to make concessions short of "violating either our independence or our policy of neutrality."

"Our strength," he declared, "resides in ourselves, and in ourselves only. No one has given us a promise of help, no one has advised us to right with promises of assistance."

"The Finnish people are as one man at the present moment. The threats and attacks to which we are subjected have set aside small differences of opinion. Our strength lies in our unity. Finland... believes she is defending the liberty also of those nations which are not yet under immediate threat. Whatever our fate may be, we are furthering creation of a better world."

THREE HUNTERS TAKEN TO COURT FOR TRESPASSING

CHIEFS OF WPA ACT TO RELIEVE RELIEF CLIENTS

CLEVELAND, Dec. 4 — State WPA Administrator Carl Watson and G. J. Kane, state WPA operations director, were in Cleveland today to speed a WPA program designed to take 6,000 persons from the already overcrowded relief rolls.

Federal Relations Commissioner Frank E. Bubna, and Cuyahoga County WPA Director Frank T. Miskell were to confer with the two state officials and Mayor Harold H. Burton and Bubna said he was confident assignment of 4,000 single and 1,000 family relief cases on the WPA waiting list would start tomorrow.

Organizations of unemployed meanwhile prepared to attend a special city council meeting tonight and express their views as councilmen struggled with the problem of feeding Cleveland's 60,000 needy despite a serious lack of funds.

Members of the Workers Alliance, WPA workers and relief clients were urged to invade the meeting en masse to protest the city's tactics in meeting the relief crisis.

Mayor Burton said Finance Director G. A. Gesell and Assistant Law Director Joseph H. Crowley would go to Columbus Tuesday to confer with state officials on means of raising additional relief money.

Three WPA projects already had received the approval of Washington officials and it was estimated that at least 4,000 men could be employed this week on the city parks and metropolitan parks system and the Warrensville irrigation job.

SENATOR NORRIS ASKS PRESIDENT TO "BIDE TIME"

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—Senator George W. Norris (R) Nebraska, today urged President Roosevelt not to "eliminate himself" from the political picture at this time.

He recommended that the chief executive hold himself in readiness to continue the leadership of "the liberal, progressive thought of the nation."

"He owes it to his countrymen not to decide at this time the question of whether or not he will be a candidate for a third term," Norris said. "There is no other figure on the political horizon under whose banner there can be such unanimity of honest, progressive, patriotic citizens."

MICHIGAN DRIVER UNHURT AS TRAILER OVERTURNS

CHILLICOTHE, Dec. 4—Charles O'Conner of Highland Park, Mich., escaped injury Saturday afternoon when a truck and semi-trailer outfit he was driving south on Route 23 upset in Ross County just south of the Pickaway County line.

State highway patrolman were told a car in front of O'Conner, making a left turn from the highway, stopped in the traffic lane. The truck driver was unable to pass the car on the left side because of approaching traffic, patrolmen were told, so he tried to pass on the right and went over an embankment. The trailer was loaded with three new Mercury cars.

LEGION CHIEFS HEAR PLEA FOR END OF STRIFE

COLUMBUS, Dec. 4—A plea for diplomatic settlement of world controversies was left today with commanders and adjutants of the American Legion in Ohio by Frank E. Samuel, Indianapolis, national adjutant of the Legion.

Speaking before the final session of the annual two-day mid-winter meeting of the Ohio Legion, Samuel emphasized that the Legion "abhors war," and that diplomacy is still the "first line of defense, even in this day when strong nations invade the weak."

"How much better," Samuel said, "the world would be today if world affairs could be settled amicably."

Referring to un-American activities in this country, the national adjutant cautioned: "America is no stronger than its composite population."

"The legion is for adequate national defense, with emphasis on the adequate, so that no nation will attempt invasion of the United States," he declared.

The legion voted to hold the annual state boxing tournament in Columbus, probably sometime in March.

It was announced at the convocation that Legion membership in Ohio now totals 31,209, largest in its history.

WIRING CAUSES FLAMES IN SIGN AT PETTIT'S

ASHVILLE Ashville, Phone 79 By S. D. Fridley

Dr. Robert Hedges, son of J. R. Hedges and a practicing optometrist in Circleville, will locate his office in Circleville about the first of the new year.

Mrs. Ida Noggle, 81, suffered a paralytic stroke at her home on Station Street. She is being cared for by her son-in-law and daughter, C. W. and Mrs. Ferguson of near East Ringgold.

The Walnut school basketballs will be here Friday evening to show us a sample of their goods.

Squire John White of Bloom Township, his home just across the line in Fairfield and near Marcy, was a visitor at headquarters the other day and in reply to our question as to how business is in the Squire's office now, said he had been rather busy here lately. Something went wrong between a couple of township neighbors and the constables set one of 'em out in the big road. Somehow the higher up court down at Lancaster found out about the predicament the road occupier was in and thought he'd best move back in again so he's in and the Squire had all his messin' around about it for nothing. And that first couple he thought he'd done a good job tying together has already quit for keeps. So Squire John is not so sure that his job is as fine as some may think it is. All of which reminds us that this Harrison Township will soon have two new Squires in the persons of Elmer Malone and Harry Sark.

Yes, you may have noticed that it did snow some, but not enough to get in as a "counter" on the number of snows for the winter. It's the "rabbit trackers" only that count—too early in the month to make it come out right anyway. The date in the month of the first snow is equal to the number for the winter".

Ashville—Monday we have with us the officers, directors, agent and many of the members of the Pickaway Mutual Fire Association. Three directors, according to announcement, are to be chosen. The assessment now in process of collection is the thirty-sixth annual one.

U. S. Aids in Relief Crisis

HERE is part of a shipment of 17 carloads of food sent to Cleveland, O., by the federal government to aid in the current relief crisis. WPA workers are shown unloading the foodstuffs in a federal warehouse in Cleveland.

The Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

when Howard Hopson, its president, eluded subpoena-chasers for several weeks, later emitting the most scathing diatribes against the New Deal heard from any utility.

TOP-HEAVY COMPANY

Associated Gas is one of the largest and most intricate utilities in the country. It owes about one million dollars to stock and bondholders.

Actually it is controlled by two private trusts, the Mangle trust, held by chairman of the board J. I. Mangle; the Hopson trust, held by Howard Hopson. These trusts, in turn, control Associated Gas and Electric Company, which has a lot of stock issued against it, but no assets except a claim on the Associated Gas and Electric Corporation.

ASSOCIATED GAS

Believe it or not, but it looks as if the giant Associated Gas and Electric Company, which has bucked Roosevelt more than any other utility, is about to go New Deal.

It is considering appointment of Stewart McDonald, head of the Federal Housing Administration, as its new president.

Behind this are two immediate factors: (1) The company needs cash to meet payments on its bonds maturing in March, 1940; and (2) easiest way to get cash is through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Originally Associated Gas applied for $50,000,000 of RFC funds. It will now get $26,000,000 plus a new executive. Jesse Jones, head of the RFC, has strongly recommended Stewart McDonald, so "Stew" may be the man.

Actually there is far more background to the Associated Gas picture than this. And the most dramatic scenes were in the Senate lobbying investigation of 1934.

FIREMEN CALL FOR AID IN DRESSING UP DOLLS

Circleville's firemen are experts when it comes to repair of broken toys, but as dress-makers they just can't qualify. So today a call was issued by the firemen for assistance in providing dresses for many dolls that have been presented for distribution in the Christmas toy program.

"We have many undressed dolls," one fireman said, "and we are unable to dress them. We'd appreciate very much if some of the city's women's organizations would provide some assistance."

FINNS TO CARRY ON SOVIET WAR TO BITTER END

HELSINGFORS, Dec. 4—Premier Rysto Ryti, head of the new Helsingfors government, maintained today that Finland will see her quarrel with Russia through to the end, no matter how great the odds against her.

In a radio broadcast to the United States the Finnish premier declared the Finnish fight for liberty against the Reds is "furthering creation of a better world."

He said, however, that his government is ready to continue negotiations with the Soviets and to make concessions short of "violating either our independence or our policy of neutrality."

"Our strength," he declared, "resides in ourselves, and in ourselves only. No one has given us a promise of help, no one has advised us to right with promises of assistance."

"The Finnish people are as one man at the present moment. The threats and attacks to which we are subjected have set aside small differences of opinion. Our strength lies in our unity. Finland . . . believes she is defending the liberty also of those nations which are not yet under immediate threat. Whatever our fate may be, we are furthering creation of a better world."

THREE HUNTERS TAKEN TO COURT FOR TRESPASSING

W. A. Percy, Victor Sabo and John Devore, all of Columbus, were fined $10 and costs each in Mayor W. B. Cady's court Saturday night on charges of hunting without permission of landowners. Percy and Sabo paid their fines. Devore made arrangements to pay.

CHIEFS OF WPA ACT TO RELIEVE RELIEF CLIENTS

CLEVELAND, Dec. 4—State WPA Administrator Carl Watson and G. J. Kane, state WPA operations director, were in Cleveland today to speed a WPA program designed to take 6,000 persons from the already overcrowded relief rolls.

Federal Relations Commissioner Frank E. Bubna, and Cuyahoga County WPA Director Frank T. Miskell were to confer with the two state officials and Mayor Harold H. Burton and Bubna said he was confident assignment of 4,000 single and 1,000 family relief cases on the WPA waiting list would start tomorrow.

Organizations of unemployed meanwhile prepared to attend a special city council meeting tonight and express their views as councilmen struggled with the problem of feeding Cleveland's 60,000 needy despite a serious lack of funds.

Members of the Workers Alliance, WPA workers and relief clients were urged to invade the meeting en masse to protest the city's tactics in meeting the relief crisis.

Mayor Burton said Finance Director G. A. Gesell and Assistant Law Director Joseph H. Crowley would go to Columbus Tuesday to confer with state officials on means of raising additional relief money.

Three WPA projects already had received the approval of Washington officials and it was estimated that at least 4,000 men could be employed this week on the city parks and metropolitan parks system and the Warrensville irrigation job.

SENATOR NORRIS ASKS PRESIDENT TO "BIDE TIME"

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—Senator George W. Norris (R) Nebraska, today urged President Roosevelt not to "eliminate himself" from the political picture at this time.

He recommended that the chief executive hold himself in readiness to continue the leadership of "the liberal, progressive thought of the nation."

"He owes it to his countrymen not to decide at this time the question of whether or not he will be a candidate for a third term," Norris said. "There is no other figure on the political horizon under whose banner there can be such unanimity of honest, progressive, patriotic citizens."

MICHIGAN DRIVER UNHURT AS TRAILER OVERTURNS

CHILLICOTHE, Dec. 4—Charles O'Conner of Highland Park, Mich., escaped injury Saturday afternoon when a truck and semi-trailer outfit he was driving south on Route 23 upset in Ross County just south of the Pickaway County line.

State highway patrolmen were told a car in front of O'Conner, making a left turn from the highway, stopped in the traffic lane. The truck driver was unable to pass the car on the left side because of approaching traffic. Patrolmen were told, so he tried to pass on the right and went over an embankment. The trailer was loaded with three new Mercury cars.

LEGION CHIEFS HEAR PLEA FOR END OF STRIFE

COLUMBUS, Dec. 4—A plea for diplomatic settlement of world controversies was left today with commanders and adjutants of the American Legion in Ohio by Frank E. Samuel, Indianapolis, national adjutant of the Legion.

Speaking before the final session of the annual two-day mid-winter meeting of the Ohio Legion, Samuel emphasized that the Legion "abhors war," and that diplomacy is still the "first line of defense, even in this day when strong nations invade the weak."

"How much better," Samuel said, "the world would be today if world affairs could be settled amicably."

Referring to un-American activities in this country, the national adjutant cautioned:

"America is no stronger than its composite population."

"The legion is for adequate national defense, with emphasis on the adequate, so that no nation will attempt invasion of the United States," he declared.

The legion voted to hold the annual state boxing tournament in Columbus, probably sometime in March.

It was announced at the convocation that Legion membership in Ohio now totals 31,209, largest in its history.
